21. Mevo Hamma: kibbutz, Mapai affiliation; established Jan. 1968, southernmost Israeli settlement on the Heights--reported population 170 adults--raise vegetables, bananas, avocados, beef, chickens--13 three unit dwellings, 9 single unit dwellings, 4 large poultry houses, 1 basketball court, 10-15 other buildings, bomb shelters--water obtained from man-made reservoir to the north of the settlement, pipeline connects with Lake Tiberias via storage tank midway between Mevo Hamma (#21) and Kefar Haruv (#20).

The number and type of buildings and related facilities was obtained from Nov 1973 overhead reconnaissance; other descriptive material was derived from numerous unclassified and classified sources. The intelligence is limited by some gaps in reporting; the many name changes and settlement relocations may have caused some errors in the reports on which this memo is based; current official field reporting on the Golan Heights is not available; news reports from the area are censored.

Population figures for the settlements is given as an estimated number of families, except for the nahals which are populated by single men and women in military service. The Orthodox settlements tend to have larger families than the non-Orthodox. A Tel Aviv newspaper Yediot Hadashot gives the post-October War number of Jewish settlers (including children) on the Golan Heights as 1,727.
